The happy news of the marriage of Lewis Caswell, formerly a Carlisle pupil to Miss Carrie Smith, a former student of Lincoln Institution, Phila., comes from White Earth, Minn.

The INDIAN HELPER and the race it champions has a good friend in the person of Mrs.
Jos. Weber, of South Bethlehem, who speaks a telling word for the Indian whenever occasion offers.

In letters that have come from our friends attending the Indian Institutes in the West, Dr. and Mrs. Hailman are highly spoken of.
One letter says if Dr. Hailman, as Superintendent of Indian Schools does not improve that branch of the service then there is no hope. Superintendent and Mrs. Coppock of the Chillico Indian School are on their way to the Salem convention and will take in Los Angeles as they go.

When Capt. Pratt was last heard from he was at Denver, Colo., on the way to Salem, Ore., to attend the Convention of Indian School teachers to be held there soon. He had been delayed considerably by the strike, on account of which a number of delegates failed to reach the Santa Fé Convention in time. Up to La Junta there was no evidence of a strike on the road, and the travelling was pleasant. At St. Louis he met Mrs. Allen at the station and enjoyed a pleasant half-hour's visit.

Hugh Sowicea of class '94, had quite a memorable experience getting home to Laguna, New Mexico. He may not have reached there yet. When last heard from, by letter bearing date of July 3rd, he was stuck at La Junta, Colorado, by the strike and everything was excitement in that city. He had then been detained for a day or two and there was little prospect of getting further west. The strikers' threats had reached the danger point and the station was being guarded by U. S.
Marshals. He has heard the La Junta band play but says it is not as good as the Carlisle Indian Cadet Band. He was made proud to hear them playing one piece—the Carlisle Indian School march composed by our Indian leader, Mr. Dennison Wheelock.

The following sad but loving tribute from the pen of William F. Campbell, class of '89 to a beloved sister now dead speaks for itself:

WHITE EARTH, MINN. July 9, 1894.
TO THE KING'S DAUGHTERS, CARLISLE INDIAN SCHOOL.

One of your sisters, Donna E. Campbell, died at her home at White Earth, on July 5.
Six weeks ago she returned from Philadelphia, where she had been sick for some time.
Though she suffered intensely during her illness she never complained, but bore it with the true fortitude of a true daughter of the King. She always wore the emblem of your organization and we buried it with her.

Yours in sorrow, W. F. CAMPBELL.

DIED—On Sunday morning, July 15, at the school hospital, Solomon Brown, of Ft. Belknap, Montana, aged probably 22 years.

Solomon was an Assinaboine. Last Fall he injured himself by incautiously overlifting. In the Spring, consumption of the lungs developed, and before he could be returned to his home became too ill for such a long journey.
Every care and attention was given the poor boy. A more perfect example of patient resignation to the inevitable was rarely ever seen. He was ready to die long before the summons came, only expressing the one wish that he might not be called hence in the night.
As if in answer to his most earnest prayer the soul took its flight most peacefully on Sunday morning about ten o'clock. Wm. Ball was a constant and faithful companion to the last, and with Miss Barr stood at his bedside when he died.

Solomon was a Roman Catholic, and the burial ceremony of that Church was carried out, Rev. H. G. Ganss of St. Patrick's Church, Carlisle, who had been faithful in his ministrations to the sick boy, officiating.
At the funeral service held in the school chapel, Rev. Ganss paid a worthy tribute to, and referred feelingly to the depth of spiritual power conveyed in the words of that incomparable hymn "Lead Kindly Light" of which Cardinal Newman is the author and which was sung as an opening hymn. He portrayed in impressive language the lesson to be gained from such a sad occasion, and made prominent the difference existing between the cold Pagan belief and the fearless, comforting life and death of the true Christian.
The remains of the deceased were buried in the school cemetery.

News from our teachers at Martha's Vineyard attending summer school is quite refreshing. Miss Bowersox caught a real live star-fish the other day. She is called the Indian lecturer by some of the strangers on account of her enthusiasm over Carlisle and the Indian question in general. The Man-on-the-bandstand was amused at seeing her the other day after an excursion from Gay Head, (the extreme western point of Martha's Vineyard) with a company of young ladies who tried to induce her to talk about the Indians by offerings of candy. There is not the slightest doubt about her earning the candy. Miss Bourassa is the only Indian student there and is learning to ride the bicycle. It is said she is covered with bruises. Mosquitoes are plenty and the cheapest thing there.
