Man-on-the-band-stand.

Fine weather.

Since Commencement we have laid to rest a little sufferer—Ada Sanakawitgate, from Utah.

Mr. Harris is again at his old post in the Blacksmith shop taking Mr. Murtoff's place for a month or so.

Mrs. L. C. Diament, Mrs. Savidge, of Philadelphia, Mrs. Charles Pennypacker, of West Chester, were guests of Miss Ely last Friday.

Miss Ely has received the sad news of the death of her brother, Mr. Lewis Ely, in Bucks County. She has gone to attend the funeral services.

To-night Miss Bowersox and Mr. Miller will attend the Invincibles; Messrs. Allen and Bennett the Standards; Mrs. Canfield and Miss Ferree, the Susans.

In setting up our list of Commencement guests we ran out of capital M's, periods and commas, hence the sprinkling of lower case letters and wrong font punctuation marks.

J. C. LaFramboise, Jr., ex-student, who is Yeoman United States Navy, has been suffering with pleurisy, for which reason he was unable to attend our Commencement exercises.

The visiting Committee at the Invincibles last Friday night pronounced it one of the best society meetings they have attended this year, and there have been good meetings in all the societies.

Commencement letters by the hundreds from prominent people in our country have been received. They are full of commendation of the work and its results, and teeming with encouragement to our workers and students.

In our chapel exercises this week, Miss Robbins gave us a very practical and interesting talk on "Modern Methods in Building. She showed us a picture of the immense flat-iron building in New York City. The necessity of having solid foundations for our buildings was impressed upon us.

School promotions were made on Monday. The pupils have gone to work earnestly. To those who were not promoted Mr. Allen spoke encouragingly. Some of our greatest Americans have found learning a slow process. Doing one's best and sticking to it day by day portends future strength of character. We promote pupils at any time during the year when they show their ability to do the work of the next grade.

Our subscribers may wonder at not getting the Redman last week but we wished to print all the Commencement material in one number, and to get the speeches in full from stenographic notes, it has required all the time we have given it. Our readers will have a combined issue of ten pages instead of two issues of four pages each, and we trust the plan will give entire satisfaction.

"My person is in Philadelphia, but my heart is still lingering in Carlisle yet. We have gotten along very nicely thus far and I think we will get along much better when we get acquainted with the people a little more." This is what Martin A. Costo who just graduated writes from his new place in Philadelphia. He with Frank Yarlott, 1902, went from here to enter the Baldwin Locomotive works. We wish for them the best of success.

The announcement last week of the death of Mrs. Standing, wife of our former Assistant-Superintendent, now living on North Hanover St. was a shock to the Indian school community. She was buried last Tuesday in the Catholic cemetery, Rev. Father Deering officiating, and a number from the school attending. A beautiful floral offering was contributed by their friends at the school and the choir assisted with the music at the church, Miss Moore, playing the organ. Miss Minnie Standing, a niece from Lawrence, Kansas, is now with the family.

Mrs. Nana M. Allen, who has spent the Fall and Winter here with her sister Mrs. Pratt, has returned to St. Louis. She spent a few days with her niece Mrs. Hawkins, in Steelton, and left there on Monday. Mrs. Allen endeared herself to all who became acquainted with her. She was ill when she came, and underwent a serious operation in a hospital in Philadelphia. She returns to her former home, St. Louis, restored to health, having a new lease on life. May her measure of happiness and success ever be full to the brim is the wish of her many friends at the school, and especially the Man-on-the-band-stand.

FORWARD—MARCH!

To the Boys and Girls of the Carlisle Indian School:

If we should tell you what thing pleased us most,

*Wholately came from near and far to see—
To hear what your young hands and brains could boast*

Of doing—why? I think we should agree

*Every time you marched in line,
Shoulders square and steady,
Heads erect and eyes to front,
Feet alert and ready,*

*Our enthusiasm grew
With your ranks' unfolding—
At the harmony and strength
Brought to our beholding.*

Yet as we cheered you came a voice to say:

*Here where your lives and aims are unified
It is not hard to keep in line. Someday,
When sterner tides have cast you far and wide,*

*Will you brace beneath your lasks
Shoulders strong and steady?*

*Will you keep your eyes to front,
Hearts serene and ready?*

*Though no neighbor-foot you hear
Beating time beside you,
Will you try to keep in line,
Trusting Love to guide you?*

Adelaide Wood Gulhrrie.

For the Redman and Helper.

The pupils of the M. C. C. Barnwell's School for Deformed Children, Baltimore, presented a beautiful Bible to Elizabeth Knudsen, who just graduated, as a reward of merit for excellence. It is the Holman Teachers' Edition with Photographic Views of Scenes in Bible Lands. Mr. Genus Baird, who graduated last year, and is now our Assistant-Printer, with thirty-one apprentices under him, received a copy of the same edition as a reward of merit for last year's school work.

At a game of basketball on Wednesday evening the Senior girls won from the Juniors by a large score, the latter not making any points. A number in the game took their first lesson that evening, and the antics of some were very amusing. They will soon learn how to use the head as well as hand in play as well as in work.

Mollie Welch, class 1903, has gone to make her home for a time with Mrs. Hawkins, Steelton, and we hear through a little bird that she is doing very nicely. Before she went, Polly Tutikoff was there for a brief period, but long enough to demonstrate that she could make first-class, home-made bread, the proof of which was in the eating, several at the school having had a taste of the same.

Those beautiful flowers brought by Mr. Sbalcross, of Trenton, made bright and cheerful many a little nook Commencement time. They were much appreciated.

The time for which he enlisted having expired Emanuel Powlas has returned from the Philippines where he has been a soldier; he has gone to his home in Oneida, Wisconsin.
