5. Tell something of your present home. I couldn't say anything much but I only say I am living happy.

6. What property in the way of land, stock, buildings or money do you have? I couldn't make anything much just now too hot.

7. Have you been in the Indian Service? In what positions? How long in each? No.

8. What other positions have you held since leaving Carlisle? I have started to work on my trade but the people couldnt work too hot so I had to jump to another job.

9. Tell me anything else of interest connected with your life:

I am having a pretty good life so far. This is all I can say. Goodbye.

From yours truly,
J. Miguel.

Jefferson D. Magill, an ex-student of Carlisle, and Anna May Savilla, both well-known young people of the Yuma tribe of Indians, were married January 8, 1911, at the Catholic Church on the Yuma Reservation,

The Native American

A Modern Yuma Indian Marriage

NO better evidence of the permanent progress in civilization of the Yuma Indian people under the patient and self-sacrificing guidance of unselfish American instructors has been afforded than a marriage ceremony which took place on the reservation across the river last Sunday between two young graduates of the Fort Yuma Indian school.

It is a far call from the primitive mating customs of the southwestern natives to the elaborate ceremonial recorded below, but the gap has been bridged in two generations.

There was a large gathering present Sunday morning to witness the marriage which took place at the Catholic church on the Indian reservation. The contracting parties were Anna May Savilla and Jefferson D. Magill, both Yuma Indians and graduates of the Yuma Indian school. Both are well educated and speak English fluently.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Joseph Charlaco and the groom by his cousin, Ambrose Magill. Both bride and bridesmaid were attired in white, the former wearing a long tulle veil with orange blossoms and carrying a white prayer book and a bouquet of Kaiserin roses.

As the party approached the altar the Lohengrin wedding march was played. Rev. Father Coulombe performed the marriage ceremony, which was followed by a nuptial mass.

During the service Miss Anita Post sang an Ave Maria and the children from the Indian school sang several selections, Miss Egan presiding at the organ.

Both the bride and groom are well known in Yuma and their many friends took pleasure in presenting them with gifts for their new home which the groom had prepared for the bride.

Miss Egan, superintendent of the Indian school, served a wedding breakfast to the party at her home, after which they received the congratulations of their many friends.—Sentinel.
