

Uncle Sam's Farm

Of all the mighty nations in the East or In the West,

Oh, this glorious Yankee nation is the Greatest and the best

We have room for all creation,
And our banner is unfurled;
Here's a general invitation to the People of the world.

St. Lawrence marks our Northern line.

As fast her waters flow,
And the Rio Grande our Southern bounds,
Way down to Mexico;

From the great Atlantic Ocean, where

The sun begins to down, Leap across the Rocky Mountains,

Far away to Oregon.

The South may raise the cotton, and The West the corn and pork,

New England manufactories shall Do up the finer work;

For the deep and flowing water falls

That course along our hills, Are just the thing for washing

Sheep and driving cotton mills

Our fathers gave us liberty, but little Did they dream

The grand results that flow along this Mighty age of steam,

For our mountains, lakes and rivers
Are in a blaze of fire,

And we send our news by lightning On the telegraphic wire.

Yes, we're bound to beat the nations, For our motto's "Go ahead!"

And we tell the foreign paupers that Our people are well fed;

For the nations must remember that

Uncle Sam's no fool, For the people do the voting, and

The children go to school.

Boys' Quartette Attend

On Sunday afternoon the male vocal quartette composed of John White, Lewis Chingwa, James W. Mumblehead, and Albert Screamer attended the men's mass meeting held in the Court House in Carlisle.

The boys appreciated the trip immensely. Aside from that—it was a great privilege to hear such a man as Mr. Smith, Mayor of Hazelton, address such a great assembly made up of many business men and prominent citizens of Carlisle.

The singing by the quartette commanded attention.

We thank Mr. Martz for giving us an opportunity to hear Mr. Smith.—1st Tenor.

The foremost topic now at the various Quarters is the good old time national bird, Mr. Turkey. This month the students as usual will keep their eyes on our kind Quarter-master whom they depend on for a Turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Day.—'09.

Invincibles

The meeting of the Invincible Debating Society, Friday last, was one worthy of mention, judging from the enthusiasm that was displayed by the members. While the attendence was not up to the standard, nevertheless, those who were fortunate enough to be present at the meeting enjoyed the good program immensely.

Captain Davenport, our Recording Secretary, being excused by the Society, Charles Huber was selected to take his place for the Manus Screamer is to be complimented on showing a true spirit of faithfulness to duty in volunteering as a reporter when our regular reporter is absent. He collects such news as pertains to the foreign countries by which he keeps the members wide awake. Such is an example we must show to enliven the society, by being prepared to preform such duties that may be lacking.

After the transaction of business the following program was rendered in an elegant style: Declamation, Louis Chingwa; Essay, Manus Screamer; Extemporaneous speeches Alexander Sage and Alonzo Brown; Select reading, Garfield Sitarangok.

Debate, Resolved: That President Roosevelt should accept the third term as President of the United States, was ably discused by the following debaters: Affirmative, William Corbitt, Edison Mt. Pleasant; Negative, Garfield Sitarangok and Harry Cummings.

The Affirmative side carried off the honors.

Mr. Whitwell and George Peake gave us a few encouraging remarks and urged us to keep up the good work.

Several students were proposed for membership to be initiated at the next meeting. A cordial welcome is extended to all who wish to enter the family.—J. W. M.

Origin of Tamany

Tammany was the anglicization of the name of wise old Tamane, an Indian chief who lived in Pennsylvania, and whose name had been borrowed by Continental troops when they were casting about for an American saint to flaunt in the face of the British enemy, who had "St. George" on their banners. When the Pennsylvania troops acclaimed "St. Tamanend" many other colonials took it up, and he appeared later in all American almanacs in the form of his canenization.

Two Important Lectures

Arrangements have been completed for two lectures to be delivered in the Auditorium on Sunday and Monday evenings next, November 10 and 11, by Mr. Edward Burlingham Schurr, a Naturalist-lecturer of national repute, and editor of the Nature-Study department of the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser.

On Sunday evening the learned gentleman will talk on "The Indian as a Student of Nature". This lecture has been especially prepared for its delivery before the students at Carlisle and promises to be a most interesting and instructive talk. It is particularly appropriate to the Sabbath day as the entire trend of the lecture is to bring the hearers into closer communion with nature thereby bringing them nearer to their Creator.

On Monday evening "The Way of a Naturalist" will be the subject. This lecture is one that is most highly spoken of by the press throughout the country and is illustrated by the presentation of live snakes, and other living specimens, the pets of the lecturer.

The institution is fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Schurr and the student body are guaranteed two evenings of interest and instruction which will be of benefit to them in after life.

The 38th Junior

William Weeks, who returned to his home in the Dakotas a couple of months ago came back to the school on Sunday last and again enrolled for another term at Carlisle. William is one of our "studious students" who has realized the benefits of faithful application to study and is laying a foundation for a successful future. He is one of the advanced musicians in the band, a conscientious advanced apprentice in the Printery and a very popular member of the Junior Class. His return strengthens not only himself, but the class, the Printery, and the Printers' football team.

The entire school is glad to see him back in his accustomed place, improved in health and full of ambition.—Junior.

The Susans' Reception

One of those little social affairs which makes Carlisle the envy of many other schools occurred on Thursday evening last in the Gymnasium, the occasion being the reception given by the Susan Longstreth Literary Society.

The large hall was very tastefully decorated with autumnal decorations and the Red and Old Gold was gracefully festooned from the ceiling, and the "cozy corners" were "fixed up" with college cushions and pennants from other schools.

The program, which was a very evenly balanced one, was carried out to completion and enjoyment reigned supreme. The merry dancers chased the fleeting moments with flying feet from the opening number until the strains of "Home Sweet Home" announced the close of a most enjoyable evening.

The prize for the most graceful dancers was awarded to Ex-Captain Exendine and Claudie McDonald.

The prize for the grand march was won by Captain Robert Davenport who was gracefully assisted by Stacey Beck.

Mary Redthunder rendered a piano solo which was well received.

Refreshments were served by the young ladies and a few remarks made by presidents of different societies, who were the honored guests of the Susans. Earle Doxtator made a short talk for the Invincibles, Lonnie Patton held up the Standards, Ethel Daniels spoke very kindly for the Mercers, and Florence Hunter, the president of the Susans, made everyone feel welcome. Captain Lubo, ex-Captain Exendine and Coach Newman took care of the athletic end and all enjoyed the speeches.

Taken as a whole the affair was a grand success and much credit is due the girls who worked faithfully and long to bring the reception to a successful finish. Their motto "Labor conquers all things" has again proved to be true.—CLARA BELLE.

Off For Harvard

The football squad left for the game with Harvard Saturday, amid the cheers of the student body. The entire school is "pulling hard" for a victory.

With but one defeat on the schedule, we certainly have grounds for hope.

CARLISLE, PA., NOVEMBER 8, 1907

Princeton-Carlisle

Princeton, smarting under the defeat administered to them by Cornell and spurred on all the week by a multitude of coaches, played Carlisle at New York last Saturday with such determined spirit and with such aggressiveness that Carlisle was beaten decisively, 16-0. It was the spirit with which the two teams went into the game that decided the contest. It seems strange to say that Carlisle was overconfident of defeating Princeton, but such was the case. Their overwhelming defeat of Pennsylvania and the glowing accounts in the papers of their wonderful team work and great individual players so swelled the heads of the Carlisle players that they seemed to think Princeton would be easily defeated without any great effort on their part, and there was a very noticeable let up in the speed and fierceness of play which was shown against Pennsylvania. Princeton on the other hand was keyed up to their best efforts and played with such speed and dash and fierceness that Carlisle was surprised, dazed and demoralized, just as Penn was when Carlisle went at them the same way the Saturday previous. Princeton has no better team than Carlisle; they have no better plays but last Saturday they played harder than Carlisle and therefore they won.

Princeton, of course, had had ample opportunity to size up Carlisle's plays and had worked up a special defense for them. Then, too, the wet, slippery field was a big handicap to Carlisle and Princeton had all the luck of the game. Still it is very probable that even on a dry field and with other things equal Princeton would have won simply for the reason stated above that they were keyed up to their best efforts, while Carlisle did not show the same spirit and dash they are capable of showing.

Let us hope that this defeat will do Carlisle as much good as Princeton's defeat by Cornell did them, and that the team will go into the Harvard game with the same spirit and determination they did at Pennsylvania, and that Princeton showed against Carlisle last Saturday. If the boys do this our season will yet be the best we have ever had. The team is not in the best of condition for the Harvard game but the boys can win it if they play as hard as they know how. "Here's hoping-."

→ In a letter to Jesse Youngdeer, Jonas Jackson states that he had the pleasure of talking to Corporal Chiltoski Nick. Since the corporal has returned to the United States his Cherokee friends and others are anxious to see him.

Indians on The Football Field

J. WHITWELL,

Principal Teacher.

Pennsylvania is a great state in several material respects, although it has the misfortune to be too one-sided in politics, which tends to corruption; it has a large population and a populous university, which has the funds to pay for coaches and trainers and other requisites of an athletic institution, and it has turned out notable athletes. But the press dispatches declare that on Saturday on the gridiron at Philadelphia, the Carlisle Indians "wiped the earth" with the university team and won by a score of twenty-six to six.

There is food for thought in this. It means something to the student of ethnology and to the lover of the romantic, for we take it that Cooper and Macmonnies have supporters even in the West. And the pioneer who fought the redskin will have greater glory by acknowledging the tributes of his adversary. The president of the United States, no mean authority by the way, and every president, with one exception, of the greater universities, have declared that football, even with its newly amended rules, is still a test of strength, stamina, agility and quick thought and that the race that sends to the gridiron a winning team is not on the downward grade.

The Indian on the football field stands in the very front rank. Man for man and pound for pound he has no superior. With the limited number to draw from the record of the Carlisle school is a wonderful tribute to "Poor Lo," for while its team has not stood at the very head it has reached invariably the third or fourth place, some times even better. The secondary school in its class also stands well up.

Through all the years of "mollycoddling" and paternalism on the part of the "dominant race" the hereditary trait in the Indian still manifests itself. He can give and take with the best of them in the severest strain that the white man can put him to on the athletic field. In such case there is still hope. There is no "race problem" to interfere. The Indian who can stand a grilling on the football field hath his uses in the everyday strenuous life. - Denver Ex.

New Assistant Matron

We are pleased to announce the arrival of Miss Alice A. Van Deman, of Benzonia, Mich., who has been appointed assistant matron in the general dining room. Miss VanDeman is a lady of extensive experience in her chosen line and has also been a public school teacher in other states. We welcome her to our little circle and trust that the work and surroundings may prove congenial to all interested.

Origin of Thanksgiving

To THE EDITOR: - Will you please give in your next issue a history of Thanksgiving Day, its origin, etc., as extended as your space will permit?—STUDENT.

THE ARROW has given at many different times articles on the subject of Thanksgiving, but the gist of the matter will be worth repeating. Thanksgiving days were known in Europe before the Reformation. The Puritans brought the institution to New England where Thanksgiving was observed much as Christmas is now, Christmas being forward on as a Papal institution. It was nearly always late in the fall, for the object of it was to testify gratifutde for the benefits of the year, typified by the crops which had then been all gathered in.

But special Thanksgiving days were observed for special deliverances from trouble, etc. The Continental Congress ordained 8 different Thanksgiving days in one year, in April, May, July and December, A whole week in December, 1621 was observed by the Plymouth Puritans as a Thanksgiving. Washington appointed Thursday, Nov. 26, 1789, for observance. The question of naming a regular Thanksgiving Day in the constitution had been fully discussed, but the states' rights delegates voted it down as something which should be left to the states. But Washington acted on the idea and proclaimed Thursday, Feb. 19, 1795, as a Thanksgiving Day.

From that time until 1861 the various states appointed their own days, or had none. It was Secretary Seward who in 1861 prompted President Lincoln to proclaim a general Thanksgiving Day, and a joint committee of congress also urged the fitness of such action. So "the last Thursday in November" was appointed for that year by proclamation, and the president has followed the custom ever since of suggesting a day. The rule is to select either the last or the fourth Thursday in November, this much discretion being left to the president. The date named is not binding on the states, and in some sections the day is little observed. Most of states have special laws making a legal holiday of the day named by the president.

How the Turkey Was Named

The original name of the Turkey was Oocoocoo, by which it was known by the native Cherokee Indians. It is supposed that our Pilgrim Fathers, roaming through the woods in search of game for their first Thanksgiving spread, heard the Oocoocoo calling in the familiar tones of our domesticated fowl, "Turk, turk, turk." These first Yankee huntsman, mistaking this frightened cry of the bird for it real song immediately labeled it "turkey," and turkey it to the bird for it is to this day. key it is to this day. Much more beautiful and musical was the Indian name "Oo-coocoo," the notes peculiar to the flock when sunning themselves in perfect content on the river benches.

- Wm. Scholder, '06, is comfortably and profitably located in Mesa Grande, Cal., and writes encouraging letters with remembrances to friends at Carlisle.
- Bede White, now of Fort Yates, N. Dak., one of the old Carlislers is doing nicely in the North and sends regards to all the students in general and no one in particular.
- There was quite a "Halloo Bill" among the band boys last Sunday evening when William Weeks, who went home after the Long Branch engagement, entered the school again.
- John R. Miller, '02, in a letter to a friend says that he is getting along very nicely at his home at Rapid City, Michigan. He wishes to be remembered to his many Carlisle friends.
- In the monthly report of room 9 for October, three students had an average of 9 or over: Naomi Greensky, Fred Pappan, and Edith Ranco. Who will have the 9's for November?
- Paul Jones gave a party last Sunday and the following guests were present: David Quinlan, Leon Jure, Roland Peters, Royal Tarbell. Leon Jure and David Quinlan, enjoyed it very much.
- A large number of boys were detailed to the second farm to husk corn. Mr. Gray certainly gets a lot of corn husked, for each boy tries to beat the other in husking the number of shocks.
- One of the officers was inspecting the rooms while the boys at work. He came to one room in which one of the Hopi boys was reading, and asked him, "why he was not out for work? He said, "Me work, me read work."
- We all enjoyed to hear the story of Paul Barker in passed few weeks, read by Miss Johnston. But now all finished. Paul Barker was a good boy, even when he was in danger among the bloody battles of the civil war.—No. 5.
- The band at the last social, played some livly music to cheer up the hearts of the disappointed students over our loss to the fierce "Tigers." We may be down hearted but their is no reason why we should lose our school spirit.
- In No. 2 schoolroom they have been having a "spelling match" every Friday as a review for the week's spelling lesson. Those that remained standing the longest were; Susie Poncha and Thomas Green of the morning division and Emma Rowland and Frank Lazore of the afternoon division.
- Louis Chingwa gave a fine recitation in chapel Monday A. M. and Michael Chabitnoy showed the right kind of spirit in making the second attempt last Thursday P. M. Michael certainly retrieved any ground lost when he failed in his first attempt. His recitation was well given.
- After the Susans reception on Hollowe'en evening, some of the girls were surprised when they were tangled up in thread as they tried to enter their rooms. The girls who stayed home strung some rooms with thread and then turned the lights out.
  Some of the rooms put us in mind of Rip
  Van Wrinkle.—E. C. D.

- The farmers on the first farm are busy storing vegetables for winter.
- → Etta Saracino is now working at the hospital, and says she enjoys it very much.
  → Fred Mart has taken up the mason's trade and he says he likes it exceedingly

The pupils have shown great interest in these visits and new ambitions and renewed desire for learning must result therefrom. These visits are part of the instruction laid down by the Indian Office for the Indian pupils.

Reserves Beaten

The Carlisle Indian Reserves were defeated by the Frankford Athletic Club at Philadelphia last Saturday afternoon.

The game was called at 3:30 and the two teams trotted out in the rain and mud to entertain a few enthusiastic spectators who were anxiously waiting to witness the Indians being wallowed in the mud puddle.

On several occasions we thought we were cheered by the crowd on the side line, but it happened that the people who were cheering for Frankford could not distinguish the Indians from the whites on account of the

Our team being outweighed could not gain much ground through their heavy line. End plays were mostly used by the Indians. The pigskin being so slippery made it impossible for us to use our forward passes.

Owing to the disagreeable weather the bleachers were thinly occupied. At the end of our first half we heard the news of our first team's defeat. So we went into the game harder than ever but in spite of all we could do the game ended with the score of 10 to 0.

The three "Cops" who played on the Frankford team were handy men, both in pushing and pulling, they got their training daily on the streets.

The game was a clean one, Twohearts did nice punting and kept the ball out of danger the second half.

Kennerly brought home a nice souvenir which he received during the game. Take notice of his right eye.-W. W.

Standard

The Standards met in their hall at the usual time.

At the ringing of the second bell the Standard Poem was sung with great spirit. Roll was called and the minutes were read.

The regular program was then carried on as follows: Declamation, Fred Sickles; Impromptu, Orlando Johnson; Declamation, Paul White. Debate, Resolved; "That the United States Government should control the railroads." The speakers were, affirmative, Louis Nash, Patrick Verney and Samuel Wilson; Negative, Leroy George, Eugene Geffe and John Feather.

Editor's report was next in order which was very good and enjoyed by all.

Reuben Charles was elected historian for the society.

Under the good of the society Mr. Venne gave many very helpful and encouraging remarks. Mr. Willard also gave his helpful words. Trombone solo was well rendered by Thomas Eagleman.

The program was well handled by those who took part. The subject was very well debated on both sides and affirmative side won.—Assistant Reporter.

School Teachers' Visit

Last week the school was visited by the principals and the entire faculty of the Public Schools of Lititz, Pa., and The Express has to say about Carlisle:- "At the Indian school the most striking feature was drawing and industrial work. The drawing is original designing, doing nothing from copy and the work they accomplish is marvelous. The character of the work was the making of designs for borders, oil cloth, book covers, mats and for other commercial purposes. The industrial department includes printing, wood work, coach making, blacksmithing, painting, tailoring, shoemaking, tinsmithing, and other trades. The party were taken through the dining room, kitchen, bake house and laundry and everything was spotlessly clean. Mr. Goetz said he never saw any hotel or other place where everything was in such faultless sanitary condition.

The school is under military training, being as branch of Uncle Sam's extensive household and the evidence of good discipline is prominent.

All the work is done by the Indians and they show the result that they can be done by intelligent methods with the unlettered and aboriginal Indians.

They have a very large and well equipped gymnasium and the institution has much to interest educated and patriotic Americans."

The Princeton Game

Those of us who remained at home and a large party from town assembled in our large gymnasium to watch the telegraphic description of the Princeton and Carlisle game on the bulletin boards. From kickoff till the game was over cheer after cheer was given for the boys who were to do battle with Princeton for our school colors which they represented, and when the final announcement "Game over, Princeton 16, Carlisle 0," was made again and again Carlisle yells were given by each troop as if we had won the game from the Tige's. The hearty way in which they cheered our defeated team after the game was grand. Every student joined in the singing of "Old Carlisle," as they marched to their quarters.

All eyes are now turned toward the Harvard game for which our team will journey to Cambridge next Saturday to try again on "Johny" Harvard, on their own ground, and there is a "never say die," spirit now in each Carlisler, which will mean never let the red and gold touch the ground.

Here's luck, "Pop!" "Win the game, boys!"—J. W. T.

The Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association meeting was interesting Sunday evening. Mr. Willard led the meeting. His subject was "Helping others." He read the scripture and carefully explained each verse. He gave a very helpful talk on his subject; he then turned the meeting over to the house and many boys took part. It seem the time was so short, because a number of boys took part, others who had something to say seemed surprised because the meeting had to be closed.

One of the interesting talks was by Reuben Charles, he gave an account of his own

Now members of the Y. M. C. A. let us do what Benj. Franklin said in Congress once, "Let us hang together or we will hang separately."

Let us help the new members who have recently join our association. Keep together, and temptation will not break us so

Each Sunday we have our meetings and others who are not members of our association are always welcome to attend. - HARRY WHEELER.

Indian Woman Lawyer

Appearing as her own attorney, Julia St. Cyr, a Winnebago Indian, the only woman Indian lawyer in the United States, has been before the Federal Court in Omaha to defend herself on a charge of having accepted too large a fee as a pension attorney from an old Indian squaw of her tribe, whose husband was a scout under Crook. And so well did she conduct her defense that the jury found for her on the first ballot.

Miss St. Cyr used all the arts of a trained pleader, not neglecting to shed a few tears at a critical moment. But having departed from the customary stolidity of Indian character long enough to make her impression on the jurymen, she returned to the impassive mask of the red man, and when the verdict of "not guilty" was announced simply said, with the greatest indifference:

'I knew it would be that way."

Julia St, Cyr is well known among the Winnebago and Omaha tribes. When an Indian of either of those tribes gets into trouble he goes to Miss St. Cyr for advice. And so much influence has she over them, that probably half the disputes are settled by her, never reaching a court of law at all. Her word is almost law on the reservations,

Although educated at Hampton, Va., and later placed in charge of an Indian school on the Kickapoo reservation. Miss St. Cyr has persistently refused to adopt the customs of white people and at tribal ceremonies always takes an active part, dressing as her people have always

Miss St. Cyr gets her French name from her father, a half-breed French-Indian, who in turn inherited it from his ancestor, Louis St. Cyr, a French nobleman who was banished by the first Napoleon and who came to New Orleans early in the last century. Then he came north along the Mississippi and Missouri and married into the Winnebago Indian tribe.

Susan Longstreth

The usual meeting of the Susan Longstreth Literary Society took place last Friday evening, at 7:00 P.M.

All members present responded with a sentiment as is the usual custom, after which new members were confirmd taking the obligation of membership. The Susans welcome these new members and bid them labor hard for the Society.

The transaction of business was not up to the usual Standard. The program was opened by the Society Song, Susans; Essay, Inez Brown; Story, Pearl Wolfe, (which was short and sweet); Select Reading, Clara Trepania; Mandolin Solo, Texie Tubbs (who rendered a couple of selections greatly enjoyed by all present). Next in order was the debate well defended on both sides. The speakers showed careful study on the subject which made it interesting. The question was, "Resolved: That the Detroit river is of more value to the nation than the Delaware river." Those on the affirmative were Laura Bertrand and Julia Jackson; Negative, Claudia McDonald and Marie Arteshaw. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

After the Critic's report, a few encouraging remarks were given by Mrs. Foster and Mr. Driver, our visiting Committee, after which the house adjourned.-C. B.
