CARLISLE, PA., OCTOBER 22, 1909

NUMBER 7

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

Word comes from Wm. Beaudoin, Point Mills, Mich., that he is well and having a good time. He sends regards to all old friends here.

The clothing room in Small Boys' Quarters has been fitted out with a number of boxes to hold the extra clothes that come in from the laundry.

Elizebeth Penny, a graduate of the class '08, is now attending a business college in Lewiston, Idaho. She lives with Supervisor O. H. Lipps and is getting along nicely with her studies.

Etta Hatyewinny, who left Carlisle last year with the returning Nez Perces, is now at work as seamstress in Lapwai, Idaho. She writes that she is enjoying her work and getting along very nicely.

All paths lead to the grove. Walnuts are the attraction. Returning groups from an afternoon spent there appear to wear the insignia of the "blackhand" society, but what is walnut stain as compared to the fun of cracking and eating the nuts themselves?

William L. Paul, '02, who, in a letter to THE ARROW, signs himself "A Loyal Son of Carlisle", writes that he is now studying in the theological seminary at San Anselmo, California. This is a small town just outside of San Francisco. He sends greetings and best wishes to everyone at Carlisle.

Isaac Quinn, a former student, who spent the summer at his home in St. Paul, Minnesota, and in South Dakota, stopped for a few days at the school before going to Philadelphia to take up his studies at the Pennsylvania Museum of Industrial Art. He holds a scholarship to this school good for four year's study there. Illustrating and designing are the lines of art, along which he hopes to specialize. We hope he will like the school and the work and that he will make excellent progress.

"I am thinking of dear, old Carlisle and wish I was back there going to school." This is the beginning of a letter from Susie Poncho recently received, addressed to her "School Father." Susie is living in Paquate, New Mexico, with her aunt and uncle; is having a good time and getting along well. She says: "The Carlisle boys that have returned home are certainly doing fine here on their farms. They have good times when they get together; I see them every day and we talk about dear, old Carlisle." Susie sends greetings to all her Carlisle friends.

Samuel Freemont, who left Carlisle for a sailor's life on the ocean waves, has been transferred from the U. S. Torpedo Station at Newport, R. I., where he was formerly stationed, and is now on the U. S. S. New Jersey. This is one of the vessels sent to represent the U. S. Navy at the recent Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York. Samuel was aboard the New Jersey during the celebration time and says he had many pleasant experiences while his ship was lying in New York waters.

Room No. 8, Miss Johnston teacher, has through Miss Johnston sent a vote of thanks to the teacher and students at the print shop for printing for them in motto-card form their morning verses. This little poem, which we quote below, is a favorite with No. 8, and they ask to have it printed in THE ARROW so that all may see it.

"I would be true; for there are those who trust me.
I would be pure; for there are those who care.
I would be strong; for there is much to suffer.
I would be brave; for there is so much to dare.
I would be a friend of all—the foe, the friendless.
I would be giving, and forget the gift.
I would be humble, for I know my weakness.
I would look up, and laugh, and love, and lift."

OUR VISIT TO THE THE FAIR.

"We went to the animal fair;
The birds and the beasts were there."

In order to avoid the rush, we went early and found the grounds quite deserted. The chickens stopped eating to look at us in mild surprise; the young roosters, anxious to show off, crowed before our faces; the puppies yawned sleepily; and the rabbits looked possibly more stupid than nature intended.

We strolled through the art department, where we saw many interesting things, among which were quilts that must have required months of patient labor to make; rugs that made us want to go to housekeeping at once; and dear, old samplers, such as our grandmothers delighted to make. It was all very fascinating, but there were other sights; so we moved toward the stalls in which the horses were. We found them contentedly munching hay. They glanced at us only out of the corners of their eyes, and, when we said that they were beautiful, they switched their tails, which was interpreted by one versed in horse-tail lore to mean, "Oh, go on, we've heard that before". Being in a frame of mind to act upon a hint, we moved on. Presently we came to the animal cage, and there on the platform, where everyone could feast his eyes on them, were three babies—a lion, a leopard and a mountain lion. They were as playful as house kittens, rolling, tumbling and nipping at each other in the most delightful manner. They allowed, and even responded to, hugs. We wanted to bring them back to the school, but the unfeeling owner would not give them to us.

There were all the attractions incidental to country fairs—but the bugle blew, and, almost before we knew it, we were seated around our own tables, where we fell to discussing the merits and demerits of the Cumberland County Fair.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

Gus Welch came in from the country last week. He reported having a fine time during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Friedman are attending the twenty-seventh Lake Mohonk Conference this week.

Montreville Yuda has returned looking exceedingly well. He has been traveling with a theatrical troupe, playing the part of "hero."

Miss Hattie Jamison, a graduate of this school, was one of our visitors last week. We were very glad to see her looking so well and happy.

The Catholic meeting was held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday evening. The Sisters were out and the singing of new hymns was the order of the evening.

Among the visitors to the Invincible Debating Society last Friday evening was Mr. Whitfield, who gave them some very good advice with which to start out the year.

The Bible study classes have been organized, and judging by the large number who have joined, they are sure to result in much good work being done.

Last Saturday our second team easily defeated the strong Gettysburg A. C. by the score of 17-0. The teams were evenly matched, and both fought a clean game from start to finish.

The fine sentiment in the declamation given by Edison Mt. Pleasant in the auditorium last Monday morning contained a valuable lesson for us all. The title was, "The House by the side of The Road."

The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. held a cabinet meeting Sunday evening, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, for the purpose of arranging a program for the reception which will be given the latter part of this month.

Last Friday evening Mr. Denny spoke encouragingly to the small boys about joining a literary society. His words were effective, for many of them visited the different societies with the object of joining the one they liked best.

The reading given by Richard B. Harrison in the auditorium last Saturday evening was generally conceded to be a very pleasant and instructive one. We are very grateful to the management for providing such excellent entertainment.

Miss Hunter, who graduated from Carlisle in 1908, is now attending the Philadelphia School of Pharmacy. Her friends here, and elsewhere, will be gratified to know that the board of trustees of that institution have awarded her the Thomas H. Powers Scholarship, an honor that she has a right to be proud of.

The Invincible Debating Society met at the usual hour Friday evening in their assembly room. Vice-president Friday called the house to order. There being no regular program prepared, a volunteer program was given as follows: Declamation, Joe Loudbear; extemporaneous speeches, Robert Tahamont and George La Vatta; select reading, Fred Cornelius; vocal solo, James Mumblehead. One of our visitors, Mr. Whitfield, of Carlisle, gave us an interesting talk. Mr. Fritz Hendricks followed with some sound advice.

The "Try-ers" Sunday school class went to the mountains last Saturday afternoon. There were twenty-two in the party, and the trip was made in the large school bus. The weather was cool, the roads were fine, and the ride was splendid. Sterrett's Gap was the point visited. After reaching there around the road, all started down the mountain on foot through the woods. How beautiful were the trees in their gay, autumn dresses! and how luscious were the wild grapes that were gathered! Time passed all too swiftly. Lunch was eaten by the roadside on the way home. Miss McDowell and Mr. Ramsey were the chaperones.

At chapel exercises Monday, Mr. Porter and Mr. Koehler, both of whom are connected with the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, took part in the services. Mr. Porter made a short address in which he pointed out that after we leave school, and get out in the world to make our way, we have examinations to pass just as we have at school. The difference lies in the fact that in school examinations are given to find out what we know; in our life after leaving school we are constantly being tested in what we can do. Mr. Porter used several clever anecdotes to bring out the points of his argument, which were appreciated by all. He is a forceful speaker and his advice sound and practical. We hope he will come and talk to us again.

Last Friday evening the Standards elected the following officers: President, Francis Coleman; vice-president, Oscar Boyd; recording secretary, Harry Woodbury; corresponding secretary, Andrew Jackson; treasurer, Samuel Wilson; critic, William Nelson; assistant critic, Albert Lorentz; music manager, Joseph Ross; sergeant-at-arms, Maxie Luce. Mr. Gus Welsh and Mr. Richard Hinman were nominated for the office of editor. The election was very close, Mr. Welsh being elected by only one vote. A very good program was carried out as follows: Declamation, Alvin Kennedy; impromptu, Francis Coleman; declamation, William Nelson; oration, Oscar Boyd. The oration was written by Harry Wheeler, who was absent on important business. Mr. Boyd kindly volunteered to represent him.

The Susans had a volunteer meeting last Friday evening. Nearly every one who was called upon responded with true society spirit. Ada M. Towns was confirmed into the society, thus adding one more to the loyal band of literary workers. After the business of the meeting had been disposed of, entertainment was in order. Laura Tubbs, Iva Miller, Anna Chisholm, Clara Bonser, Mae Wheelock and Texie Tubbs each contributed something toward the pleasure of the evening. An impromptu debate followed. Question: Resolved, "That the girls should be dinner helpers." The speakers in behalf of the affirmative were Vera Wagner and Inez Brown, while the negative side was upheld by Margaret Blackwood and Adeline Greenbrier. The negative side won, but the sympathy of the house was with the affirmative.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

On Sunday, at St. Patrick's Church, the pipe organ was played by Alberta Bartholomeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Nori, with Verna and Hazel and Bessie Saracino, went over to Harrisburg Saturday to visit friends.

James Crow, who went home to South Dakota for his vacation, returned last week with a party of new students.

Lucy Hill, the smallest girl in the school, is at the hospital having her eyes treated. We miss her very much at quarters.

Emma LaVatta recited "The Legend of the Thistle" in the auditorium last Monday morning. It is a very interesting story.

Mrs. Friedman, Mrs. Smith, and Miss Guest attended the performance of "The Merry Widow" at the Majestic in Harrisburg last Saturday.

The Catholic pupils enjoyed their Sunday evening service very much. The singing was unusually well rendered and brought back very pleasant memories to some of the pupils.

On Monday morning the Sophomore Class was favored with short talks from Gus Welch and Geo. Thomas. Gus told of his summer experiences while George told of his trip to New York City with the football team.

Another party which spent Saturday afternoon shopping in Harrisburg and attended the matinee performance of "The Merry Widow" included Mr. and Mrs. Denny, Mrs. Canfield, Miss Jennie L. Gaither, Miss Reichel and Miss Mann. All had a good time.

Mr. Sampson Owl, of Cherokee, N. C., is here visiting the school. He brought a party of new pupils. This makes his second visit to Carlisle. The first was in the early nineties when his daughter Kanne, a graduate of the school, was a student here. On his way home he intends to visit the city of Washington.

The union meeting of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. was held in the Auditorium last Sunday evening. Mr. Porter, the National Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was the speaker. He gave us such a good talk that we hope he may come again very soon. One of the objects of the meeting was to organize the Bible study classes. Many students are joining, and many more are interested, so we are looking forward to good, earnest work being done during the winter.

The Mercers had an interesting meeting last Friday evening. A very good program was rendered as follows: Song, society; recitation, Anna Dibow; pen-pictures, Minnie Doxtator; vocal solo, Marie Hill. The society was then favored with a vocal duet by Carlyle Greenbrier and Mr. Whitwell. The question for debate was: Resolved, "That iron is more beneficial to man than gold." Margaret LaVatta and Susie Porter spoke for the affirmative, while Flora McDonald and Rosetta Peirce spoke for the negative. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative. Mrs. Denny, Mr. Whitwell, and Mr. Ramsey each gave good advice to the society.

The Monthly Meeting.

Supt. Friedman delivered the first of a series of monthly addresses to the student body in the auditorium on Wednesday night, October 3. After a selection by the band, scripture reading and the singing of a hymn, Mr. Friedman spoke at length on the obstacles and discouragements which beset the newly-arrived and the recently-returned student at Carlisle. He enumerated the most common causes of complaint among students—grading in the academic classes, assignment to trades and industries, dormitories and room-mates, the food, and rules and regulations. There are ways of overcoming these stumbling blocks in the paths leading to a thorough education, and with perseverance and a cheerful spirit many of them will disappear altogether, said the superintendent.

Following Mr. Friedman's talk, and the dismissal of the students, the first regular faculty meeting was held. The superintendent outlined the reasons for holding such meetings and the benefit which ought to result from them. He described the general conditions at Carlisle, and gave, for the benefit of the new employees especially, a brief resume of what the attitude of the student and employee should be.

ABOUT CARLISLE ATHLETICS.

The Indians barely won the football game with Syracuse University in New York City last Saturday. The score was 14-11. All of Carlisle's points were scored after the hardest kind of work, and were fairly earned, while Syracuse's scores were the result of fumbled punts by the Indian back field and were in the nature of flukes. The Indians showed better football at times than they displayed heretofore this season and when within scoring distance of the opponent's goal they got together and carried the ball over the line by irresistible team work and a more powerful attack than the team showed at any time last year.

Houser was the man to carry the ball in the line bucking plays, and scored all the points for Carlisle except a goal by Captain Libby, but the whole team was with him, giving their best help in every play.

The faults in the Indians' playing which were serious and nearly caused the team to be defeated by an inferior opponent, were careless handling of punts, offside play and needless use of hands, causing frequent and disastrous penalties. These are faults which can be remedied by determination and perseverance, and must be eradicated before the Penn game if we are to hold our own with the Quakers. One mistake is liable to lose a game which will be as hard fought as that will be.

The men who played in the Syracuse game were as follows: Newashe, Wauseka, Germaine, Jordan, Burd, Garlow, Kennerly, Libby, LeClair, Wheelock, Houser. Substitutes: Sousa and Yankee Joe.

The team plays the University of Pittsburg tomorrow at Pittsburg. This is no easy game and Carlisle only won last year from the same team 6-0 after a very hard struggle.

The scrub team plays the Young Men's League team of Wormleysburg here tomorrow and the Jr. Varsity goes to Scotland to meet the Soldiers Orphan School there.

The cross country candidates are busy these days jogging over the country roads, and the race on November 13th is bound to bring out some "dark horses" who will surprise some of the favorites in the race.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

Fred Pappan, who returned here last week from his home, is now practising hard for the cross country run, which will be held next month.

Rachael Penny, who left here last year, is now attending the Lapwai, Idaho, high school, where she is considered one of the brightest scholars. She intends finishing her studies.

THE ARROW is always glad to get news items about graduates and former students. They are especially welcome when they tell of the success and progress of our Carlisle pupils, who are making their own way in the world.

An ARROW subscription received from James Paisano is accompanied by a note which says that James and Absalom Lockwood are enjoying farm and ranch life together at Seama, New Mexico. James is an ex-printer, who returned to his home this fall. His fellow-workers at the print shop are glad to hear from him.

The Sophomores held their meeting in the class room on October 5th. The election of captains for the basket ball teams occupied a large share of the time. Emma Newashe was elected captain of the girls' and Joel Wheelock captain of the boys' team. The next was the program—one of the best we ever had: Guitar solo, Agnes Waite; impromptu, Clifford C. Taylor; select reading, Ernestine Venne; clarinet solo, Joel Wheelock. There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Carlisle graduates don't forget Carlisle. THE ARROW is in receipt of a letter from John H. Miller, class 1902, who is now in Elk Rapids, Michigan. He says: "It has been some time since I heard anything about 'Greater Carlisle'. Do you still publish a paper? If so, I wish you would send me sample copies, so I can see what it is like. I want to keep in touch with the school for I think a great deal of that institution. I am still employed as harnessmaker by the Antrim Hardware Company, of Elk Rapids."

Several of our former football stars have recently sent in subscriptions to the ARROW. They are interested in knowing just what is going on here in the football world, and in other doings as well. Michael Balenti writes for both the ARROW and The Indian Craftsman from Calumet, Oklahoma. Samuel Mclean is at his home in Wood, South Dakota, and asks to have the ARROW forwarded there. He says in his letter: "I am at present at home helping my father with his work. I am also having quite a nice time hunting occasionally, for game is very plentiful out here."

On Saturday afternoon the school was invited to attend the matinee performance of "Lena Rivers" at the opera house in Carlisle. Seats in the orchestra were reserved for all, and the entertainment was enjoyed. More than one of the girls was moved to tears by "Lena's" pathetic story, and more than once the despicable, meddlesome "Caroline" was soundly hissed by the boys. The greatest enthusiasm of the afternoon, however, was aroused by neither the hero nor the heroine, but by Mr. Meyer, who, at the close of the second act, announced the football bulletins from the game with State at Wilkes-Barre.

There are a number of new faces seen around the campus these days, both among students and employees. Among the latest comers to join the ranks of the employees are Miss Ester Piper, a Pennsylvanian, who is teaching No. 5; Miss Mary Rush, who hails from Woodstock, Virginia, and is proud of it, and proud also of No. 6 where she is teaching; and Miss Miriam Crosser, a western representative from Missouri. None of these young ladies has ever taught in the Indian Service before. They say they like Carlisle. Let's all make them like it still more and wish them a long, pleasant stay within our gates.

 MY SUMMER VACATION.

MARY REDTHUNDER.

My summer vacation was spent at Sea Isle City, New Jersey. This is a small quiet place, off the coast. The people I worked for lived in a bungalow a few feet from the board walk. It is large enough to hold thirty people.

I was assigned to help with the cooking and washing dishes.

I was given every opportunity for pleasure. In the afternoons I went in bathing, or to the south end Inlet, to gather shells. I went to Ocean City several times to see friends.

HOW I SPENT THE SUMMER.

BERTHA STEVENS, Klamath.

I went out to the country in the second party to a place by the name of West Collingswood. There were six in the family; I was satisfied with the home, for they were very kind people.

The work I did was not hard. I cooked all the meals and washed the dishes. I did my sweeping Wednesdays and Fridays; when the sweeping was done I dusted the furniture and washed windows. Before I got the dinner ready, when I had all my morning's work done, I straightened up my room and mended my clothes.

On Sundays, I went to church at half-past ten o'clock, and returned in time to get the vegetables ready to put on to cook at half-past eleven. We had our dinner at one o'clock.

During the week days I was allowed to go out every evening and afternoon if I wanted to. I often went to the park, also to the city. I had a very pleasant summer. I and the other girls always went to the baseball game every Saturday afternoon. But when fall came, I did not care to stay any longer, for I preferred to come back to Carlisle and spend my winter in school.

Senior Class Meeting.

The Seniors met in the music room on the evening of the 7th, the president in the chair.

After the class song the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, and approved. The report of the committee on question: "Resolved, that Cook deserves the honor of discovering the North Pole." The motion was made and carried that the question be adopted for debate at our next meeting. There being no other report, the election of officers was next in order. The election resulted as follows: President, Sarah Hoxie; vice-president, Carlisle Greenbrier; secretary, Levi Hillman; reporter, Stacey Beck; critic, Inez Brown; sergeant-at-arms, William Nelson. The house then proceeded with the regular program. The program was presented as follows: Declamation, John Bastian; essay, Johnson Enos; piano solo, Miss Keokuk; impromptu, Miss Bear; anecdote, Miss Wolf; duet, Misses Carlisle and Adeline Greenbrier; class prophecy, Joseph Loudbear.
