THE INDIANS' TREASURE.

MARGARET O. BLACKWOOD, Chippewa.

A great many years ago, before my mother can remember, instead of there being the little town in which we now live, there was a beautiful Indian village. It was situated on the shore of Lake Superior, at the mouth of the smooth and silent river which is called the Ontonagon, —an Indian word meaning, "Oh my dish."

Here the Chippewas lived peaceful and happy lives. The men hunted and fished while the women, who have always been industrious, worked day after day, doing the same work their mothers had done before them.

One day the Indians, who had, previous to this time, discovered the dull copper which, by scouring upon the sand became bright, found to their intense delight an enormous mass of the pure metal—which weighed many tons—up in the Porcupine Mountains. They were greatly pleased with this beautiful treasure and guarded it jealously. They thought the Great Spirit had given it to them as a reward for their goodness and strength.

One evening at twilight a strange canoe was seen approaching upon the calm waters of the lake, which brought the Indian people out of their wigwams to gaze upon the unusual sight. Was it one of the cold and cruel white men from the south, of whom they had heard so much? Or was it one of the people from the north, who were so friendly and willing to trade with their tribe? When he landed great was the consternation. The Chippewas had never before looked upon the face of a white man. He greeted them kindly, and told them he was their friend. The Indians trusted him for he spoke in their own native tongue of many great things that had been done. The Indians listened in amazement. This made them believe he was more than an ordinary man.

When Jim Paull—for this was the stranger's name—was hunting one day, he came upon a crowd of braves seated around a fire in the woods. They were earnestly talking, making gestures as they spoke. Without thinking what it might mean, he stepped noiselessly up behind them and listened. He heard them say that, as he was their great friend, they should show him their wonderful mass of copper. The greed for wealth was upon him and in another moment he was commanding them to take him to it at once. This aroused the Indians' suspicions and on noticing it, he vowed he would bring the Great Spirit upon them. At the same minute a dull rumbling over the lake was heard, and the Indians who are mortally afraid of thunder, rushed through the forest and revealed their treasure to the white man.

The next day Jim Paull caused the copper to be floated down the river and placed upon the landing at the mouth. Here it remained until one day a Government boat, which was surveying the shore, came by the village. The Indians' friend, Jim Paull, who did not know the Government men were friends of the Indians, beckoned to them and urged them to take his copper to Detroit. But the captain, who was an honest man, knew it belonged to the Indians, so he took it to Detroit and from there it was sent to Washington, D. C., where it is on exhibition at the present time.

Carlisle Out in Oregon.

Miss Alice Heater, of the class of 1905, and who afterwards graduated from the Jefferson Hospital, has returned to her home in Oregon, where she intends following her profession of nursing. She will go to her work there well prepared, for, in addition to the excellent training received while at the hospital, she has since had the advantage of two years of practical nursing here in the East.

ARAPAHO TRADITION OF CREATION.

MOSES FRIDAY, Arapaho.

Among the traditions handed down from generation to generation is the creation of the world. I will try to give an account of what was told by the old people of my tribe.

At one time this earth of ours was uninhabited and covered with water to an unknown depth. Upon the surface of this vast ocean floated a pipe, which served as a sort of boat for the Great Spirit.

He had in his possession a duck, beaver and a turtle, which were his only companions. The Great Spirit knew there was clay at the bottom of this vast sea, whose depth was beyond the imagination.

He asked the turtle to dive down to the bottom of the sea and bring him some clay. The turtle did as he was directed, and at a certain length of time he reappeared upon the surface without any clay, as he was unable to reach the bottom. The beaver was the next to go down with a determination to succeed, only to come up to the surface empty handed as the turtle. When the duck's turn came it stayed at the bottom longer than the others. It appeared upon the surface with a small amount of clay in its mouth. The Great Spirit took the clay and threw it in different directions. A vast area of dry land was formed.

He next created the sun and the moon which gave light to the world. A man and woman were next created, from which all the Indians are descended. He gave the sacred pipe to the man and instructed him concerning its care, until the end of world.

The pipe is made of wood, but it is so hard and solid that many think it is made of stone. It is held sacred by the Araphos to this day, and they claim that if the laws concerning its care are violated, it will bring a destructive flood to the people on earth.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

The printing force is very busy getting out the Annual Report.

Our new "visitors' register" which was opened on September 12, 1909, just a year ago, contains 2747 signatures.

Laura Tubbs, a member of the junior class who went home last April, is now Mrs. Almon Dennis. Our best wishes.

Francis Bacon, who has been working in town for the past two years, intends to enter the telegraphy department this fall.

Carlisle Greenbrier, who has been spending her vacation in Ohio with her mother, has returned to Carlisle to take the business course.

On account of the rain last Sunday morning, the Catholics could not attend Mass in town so a meeting was arranged in Y. M. C. A. hall.

After spending a delightful vacation at her home in Oneida, Wis., Ruth Elm returned last Saturday accompanied by four new students.

Among the old football players coming in for the season is Louis Island, a noted quarterback. His many friends were glad to see him looking so well.

Jefferson Brigham Smith, a prominent Senior, has been transferred to the Athletic Quarters. His prowess on the foot-ball field brought about this pleasant change.

Last Sunday afternoon, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Father Murphy spoke eloquently to the Catholic students about their duty to love God, and to love one another.

Myrtle Peters, a graduate of the class '08, came in last week to take the commercial course. Her many friends were glad to welcome her and to see her looking so well.

The members of the football team were glad to see Capt. Hauser return. Capt. Hauser says he expects to have a good team this year. We all wish him and his braves success.

Miss Dunlevy has been transferred from the Printing Department, to the Administration Building, and Miss Hazard, of Washington, D. C., who has just arrived, has taken her place.

Fred Schenandore, our champion hurdler, is with us again. He is a candidate for one of the half-back position on the football team, and if chosen, will be sure to strengthen our backfield.

Jesse Young Deer, a former student who is playing ball with the famous Nebraska Indians, visited us Friday and Saturday. Jesse was a member of the ball team here for several years.

The Y. W. C. A. girls are sorry to have Miss Wistar leave them. Miss Wistar is going to be a missionary in India, and she will sail for Bombay a week from Friday. Our best wishes go with her.

Peter Hauser, who has been for sometime on a visit to his home in Oklahoma, returned to school Sunday, bringing with him his sister Anna. Every one was glad to see Peter again, and to welcome his sister to "Old Carlisle."

Pleasant Y. W. C. A. Reception.

Last Friday evening, in the Y. W. C. A. room, was given a charming impromptu reception in honor of Miss Wistar and Miss Rinker, the retiring and the incoming secretary of the Carlisle Y. W. C. A. Miss Lecrone and Miss Johnston planned and inspired the entertainment which was given as follows: Song, "Old Carlisle;" "The Pipe Organ," a delightfully funny number given by girls graduated in size and arranged to represent the pipes and keys; Texie Tubbs gently touched each head, and as each went down a sweet tone imitative of the organ, came forth. The "Hiawatha Pantomime," by seven girls in costume, which was given at the Ohio Conference, came next, and that too afforded great amusement. Then a phonographic solo, without a phonograph, after which came speeches from Miss Wistar and Miss Rinker. The girls showed their appreciation by enthusiastic cheering which so whetted their appetites that refreshments followed, bringing the happy evening to an end.

Address By Miss Cutter.

In the auditorium, at opening exercises last Monday morning, Miss Cutter made an address to the faculty and students, the gist of which was the desire that all students, and especially Carlisle students, should make the most of their opportunities, cultivate a sense of gratitude, and employ their time toward a profitable end. Miss Cutter needs no introduction to the majority of our readers, as she is widely known throughout the Indian service, having been in the work for thirty-one years, twenty-eight of which were spent here at Carlisle. Among the returned students is a large number of graduates who received the benefits of her character-building instruction and motherly care. For during her long years of service, Miss Cutter has been called upon to serve in many different capacities, and always with credit to herself and to the furtherance of the best interests of the school.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Nearly one hundred boys and men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday evening listened with rapt attention to a masterly address by Prof. W. A. Hutchison, Head Master of Conway Hall. Coming from a man who understands young men so well, and who does so much for them, higher resolves and nobler purposes could but follow his words of goodly advice and kindly warnings so frankly, sincerely, and convincingly uttered. Boys, you are missing talks that wake up and spur on to action the best there is in you when you stay away from these meetings. Can you afford it?

Mr. D. M. Howell, Secretary of the Carlisle Association, speaks next Sunday evening at 7:00. Come!

The Association regrets to give up its faithful and efficient vice-president, Mr. Fritz Hendricks, who goes to Chilocco to assist Mr. Alfred Venne formerly secretary here, but wishes for him a life filled with usefulness, knowing well that he deserves all the pleasures that will come therefrom.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

Daphne Waggoner, who returned from the seashore last week, has been detailed to the Teachers' Club.

Many Chippewa students have entered our school this fall, most of whom are from the state of Minnesota.

The many friends of Mary Silas regretted to see her leave Carlisle. She left for her home last Monday evening.

By special request from the students, those of the departmental grades will have for study an extra half-hour added to the regular quiet hour.

William Gardner, one of our greatest football stars, is with us for a few days. During his stay he is assisting "Pop" Warner on the football field.

The first issue of THE CARLISLE ARROW was very interesting to us, since it contained so many happenings of the school during the summer vacation.

The Y. W. C. A. girls gave a reception in honor of Miss Wistar and Miss Rinker in Y. W. C. A. room last Saturday evening. They played games, carried out a short program and also served refreshments. The evening was a very pleasant one for all.

At the Y. W. C. A. meeting last Sunday evening Miss Cutter, one of the pioneer teachers of Carlisle, gave an interesting talk on her work among the Indians of the Southwest. Ella Johnson also gave a talk on what she did at her country home during vacation.

William Ettawageshik, Eugene Powlas, and Charles Mochamp, played with the 8th Regiment Band at Palmyre, Pa., on Labor Day. The report comes that they acquitted themselves well, and we are gratified that they are competent to reflect credit on the school training.

Fritz Hendricks, one of our older students, left for Chilocco this week Wednesday. He goes there to take a position as assistant disciplinarian. He is a fine young man, and we predict for him a very useful and successful life. His many friends at Carlisle want him to do well and wish him great success.

Miss Rinker, who is to take Miss Wistar's place as Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., is making friends very fast. She is from Dickinson College, and comes highly recommended by President Reed. She seems greatly interested in the work, and with her help, we hope to do more in the Y. W. C. A. than we have ever done before.

The Y. W. C. A. meeting, with Iva Miller presiding, was made very interesting by the presence of several teachers and many visitors from outside. Among the latter were Miss Cutter and Miss White, each of whom gave a helpful talk, for which we wish to thank them. Everybody is invited to our meetings. Come and inspire us to greater effort.

Prof. Hutchinson, head-master of Conway Hall, spoke in the Y. M. C. A. hall last Sunday evening, on the subject of "Life Plans." It was decidedly instructive and will be a help to those who had the pleasure of hearing him. Let us all attend these Sunday evening meetings and derive all the good we can from the many excellent talks which are sure to be given during the year.

A number of new students have arrived, and it is our duty to make them feel welcome at Carlisle. A kindly word or a thoughtful act will help them a great deal. They may be feeling the pangs of homesickness, and only those of us who have experienced that feeling upon arriving here, know how comforting it is to have someone ask us to take a walk and to show by his manner that he is trying to make us feel at home.

Sunday being a rainy day the boys did not attend Sunday school in town, as is customary, but met in the auditorium where Mr. Whitwell talked to them on "Narrowness." He explained how essential to success is a good beginning and a solid foundation. He said that many things that were once thought to be impossible of achievement had been successfully accomplished by years of patient toil and sacrifices on the part of persevering men. "Perseverance insures success," should be one of our mottoes.

The Seniors who represented their class at opening exercises last Monday were Lewis Runnels in the morning, and Francis Coleman in the afternoon. Each did well. Lewis' subject was: "Duties to the mind," and he proved his words by making his mind do his bidding when he forgot a word, took his seat, then bravely returned to repeat and finish in good style. Francis' subject was: "A Greeting to Labor," and the nobility of the theme was finely expressed by the speaker.

 Supt. Friedman at Conway Hall.

Superintendent Friedman delivered the convocation address Wednesday at the opening of Conway Hall. The Evening Herald says of it: "Mr. Friedman spoke very ably. His address was received with great benefit and satisfaction."

 Looking Up Ex-Students.

Mr. and Mrs. Denny are now on an extended trip through the West, enjoying their vacation, and at the same time gathering information regarding the graduates and exstudents of the school. As they both have been associated for many years with the school, as students and trusted employes, their knowledge of the former students of the school is considerable, and they hope to gather much interesting data concerning them.

 A Good Men's Meeting.

The regular work of the Young Men's Christian Association began with enthusiasm last Sunday evening. A goodly number of members and visitors attended the meeting. The singing was conducted by Montreville Yuda. Prof. Hutchinson, of Conway Hall, was the principal speaker. He gave us much good advice which will be helpful in school and elsewhere as we struggle on through life. James Mumblehead, the president of the association, gave a cornet solo entitled, "I Will Sing the Wondrous Story." Fritz Hendricks, the vice-president, gave a farewell talk, impressive in its earnestness, and after hymns of praise and exchange of spiritual thoughts, each went his way feeling enriched and strengthened thereby and drawn nearer to his ideal of what life should be.

 Now is the time to start in on a new year's subscription.

GENERAL SCHOOL NEWS.

Mazie Skye is now assisting in the Normal Department. Her classmates wish her every success in this new line of work.

Cora Battice, who went home in June, writes that she is having a good time. She expects to return to the school very soon.

During the summer the Small Boys' and also the Girls' Quarters were completely rewired so that we may now expect much better lights than heretofore.

Mrs. J. Mack Love, of Arkansas City, Kansas, together with her daughter, Marjory, left here for home last Wednesday. They passed a pleasant summer here.

Marjorie Jackson left last Monday for Chambersburg, where she will spend the winter. Her friends, and especially the Sophomores, were sorry to have her leave them.

Mary Artshaw writes from her home in Odanah, Wis., that after spending a delightful vacation, she is now making preparations to return to resume her studies with the senior class.

We are pleased to note the many renewals received for the Red Man. One lady forwarding her subscription for two years. A former student writes he would like to receive them every week.

Edison Mt. Pleasant, who has been outing at Altoona during the summer, came in last Saturday. He gave us a short account of his vacation, and, summing it up, said he had a fine time and gained much knowledge about his trade.

Great improvements have been made at the first farm during the summer, one of the most important being a cow-barn, very convenient, sanitary, and up-to-date in every way. In a later issue a full statement will be made about this and other improvements.

Mr. King's vacation time was spent at Phoenixville, his home, and near-by places, one of which, Vincent's church, is of interest owing to its having been used as a hospital for the sick soldiers of Valley Forge during the Revolution. Much of his time was spent in old-time picnicing and fishing, but Victor Herbert at Willow Grove and the leaders of the two base-ball leagues are among the other many pleasant recollections of his trip.

Stella Bear, '10, writes from Cantonment, Oklahoma, that she is well, and that she likes her place very much. As field matron, it is one of her duties to go out among the Araphoes and Cheyennes to teach them a better way of living and of dressing. She has met several Carlisle ex-students who are doing well on their own farms.

Joe Animikwan, one of our outing students, is the happy possessor of a silver watch given him in grateful acknowledgment of his services in the rescuing of a young lady — a friend of his patrons — from drowning through the overturning of a canoe. His patron writes: "Joe thinks little enough of the canal incident, but his delight in the watch is pleasant to see."

Sam Wilson, Wendell Allison, Frank Dibo, Fred Sickles, Lonnie Herford, Jefferson Smith, Harrison Smith, Roy Large, Montreville Yuda, Edward Eaglebear, James Pawnee Leggins and James Lyons are some of the printers who are back into the shop again after a summer's work under the outing system. We are glad to see them back taking up their trade again.

Marcia Melovidoo Doing Nicely.

Miss Johnston has received an interesting letter from Marcia Melovidoo, a former pupil of Carlisle School, who is now at her home at St. Paul Island, Alaska, after spending some time at Yunalaska. Marcia writes that she will never forget her former employer and associates at Carlisle. Her relatives were very glad to see her and she was glad to get home. She has been employed the past winter by Mr. and Mrs. Judge, Government employees, and received $10 a month for her services.

She says there are a good many Japanese schooners around St. Paul Island, and they are destroying the seals so rapidly that the Government is going to take measures to prevent their destruction. She is going to write an article about the seals next year. She asks to be remembered to her former classmates and teachers, and especially to Miss Zeamer and Miss Goodyear.
